

Susan P. O'Brien

November 5, 1942 - May 31, 2013

Susan P. (Spencer) O'Brien, of Aberdeen, passed away peacefully Friday, May 31, 2013, at home, with her family, after her courageous battle with lung cancer. She had fought cancer two additional times in her life.

A small, impromptu memorial gathering of family and close friends was held Saturday, June 1. A formal memorial service in North Carolina and New York is planned for later date, and her ashes will be spread in the ocean at that time.

Sue was a kind, giving, loving woman, known for her intelligence and great sense of humor. She was a good Christian, very strong in her faith, and knew she was going home to God.

She was generous to a fault to her family and friends. This extended to strangers and the many charities she supported.

Sue was employed at the Residence Inn of Southern Pines for 12 years, where she was well-loved by co-workers and guests alike.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Edwin and Susan Spencer; son John Scott Melillo; and brother Edward Spencer.

Sue leaves behind her daughters, Lee Ann Matey (Barry) and Jodi Craig; son Steven Meskisky (Jacqueline); sister, Michelle McAllister (David); grandchildren, Christopher Clark (Amber), Kellie Drake (Taylor), Andrew Roberts (Chelsey), Patrick, Kaylyn and Jensine Taylor, Todd Hohnsbehn Jr. and Spencer Meskisky; and great-grandchildren, Hunter and Nathaniel Oxendine, Cody and Gavin Clark, all of whom she adored.

Donations in Sue's name can be made to any of her many charities, Feed the Children, St. Jude Foundation, The Salvation Army and veterans associations are just a few.

The family would like to thank friends and a very special thank- you to Sue's extended family at the Residence Inn for their support and care throughout this difficult time.
